BUTTER MAKES CASH FOR COUNTY FOLKS

YEAR'S OUTPUT IN ROCK IS 2,421,863 POUNDS.

Fewer Cows This Year Than Last.
According to Assessors Figures But the Dairy Product Increases Steadily—Only Five Townships Are Now Making Any Cheese.

Dairying is the farmer's hope this year.

More and more attention is being paid in the country to butter and cheese. In a year the production of butter has increased from 1,852,637 pounds to 2,421,863 pounds. In cheese the gain is even larger in proportion—from 158,500 pounds to 372,300 pounds.

Valuing butter at twenty cents a pound the year around there is a handsome little lump of $484,376 distributed among the farms of that county from that source alone.

The distribution of dairy products, according to the assessors' figures, is as follows:

Avon.....	33500
Bradford.....	75600
Center.....	140900
Clinton.....	232950
Fulton.....	92281
Harmony.....	102400
Janesville.....	75750
Johnstown.....	85200
La Prairie.....	110500
Lima.....	104039
Magnolia.....	105000
Milton.....	171525
Newark.....	103700
Plymouth.....	148850
Porter.....	63250
Rock.....	75500
Spring Valley.....	170610
Turtle.....	216053
Union.....	201800

Bradford made 2,500 pounds of cheese; Clinton, 115,000; Johnstown, 58,300; Lima, 230,005 and Spring Valley, 70,090.

One feature of the assessors returns that is hard to square with the butter and cheese figures is the fact that only 13,899 milk cows were found by the town assessor this year while 19,904 were on the books last year. Either a smaller number of cows are producing double the amount of cheese and butter or the assessors are getting near sighted.

There has been less profit in dairying this summer because of the poor pastures. Farmers say the recent rains revived the grass in spots but the stock still has to be fed.

GREEN CORN COAXED THE HORSE

One of Senator Hill's Trotters Proves Very Susceptible to Bribery.

When the horses owned by the Senator Hill Stock company were being loaded at the St. Paul yards, one of the animals, a beautiful little three year old refused to go into the car. The help tried for an hour to make "that yar mar" move, but in vain. The manager wasn't in sight, and one of the darkies proposed using a whip. The other man skinned around until he got a stalk of green corn, which he held in front of the colt. She caught the idea and went into the car at a 2:10 clip. One of the darkies remarked to a friend, that if one always treats an animal kindly, his efforts will surely be appreciated, as was plainly shown in that yar case.

FLOWERS FOR DEBS' CELL-MATE

Local Express Messengers Say They Carry Many Bundles to Woodstock.

"There is hardly a night out of Chicago that the accommodation doesn't carry a lot of express packages, containing gifts such as books, cigars and good things to eat to Debs and his companions in the Woodstock jail," said Messenger Hyzer of this city today.

Some gifts also come from the north. When the vestibule arrived in the city this morning, a good sized shipment of flowers was on board from Minneapolis, consigned to Sylvester Keliher, Debs' cell mate and this is the way it has been running for some time. The prisoners have plenty of friends who are looking out for their welfare.

MISHAP FEARED AT THE BRIDGE.

Teams From the Country Horse Narrow Escapes From Serious Injury.

Several accidents were narrowly averted at the entrance to Milwaukee street bridge last night and Chief Acheson had hard work to keep things moving. Two young men drove in from the country last evening and turned the corner of Main and Milwaukee streets, at a break-neck speed. They saw the red light just as their horse struck the railing. Many farmers' teams turned in without looking and teams were kept turning about most of the evening in the short space from Main street to the bridge.

Bargains in Buggies.

We are still holding up the quality, but not the purchaser. I have an excellent line of road wagons at $30. I have an honest, all leather top, cloth trimmed, end spring, finely finished buggy for $55. This is better work than the cheap John's carry as their best stock and get from $80 to $90 for. My $75 stock goods have no competition and I am selling one occasionally. Yes, it's a fact. F. A. Taylor.

Mr. A. A. Snyder, superintendent of the poor farm, Waukesha Co., Ia., says: "Last winter Mr. Robert Leach used two boxes of De Witt's Witch Hazel on his leg. He had been under care of physicians for months without obtaining relief. C. D. Stevens.

YOUNG GIRL KILLED BY A WHIFFLETREE

VERY SAD ACCIDENT ON AN AVON FARM.

Fifteen Year Old Adeline Eicher, Who Had Volunteered to Drive "The Fork Team" During the Rush of Haying Had Her Kidneys Crushed When the Harness Broke.

It was an uncommonly tragic end that overtook fifteen year old Adeline Eicher, at the farm of Mr. and Mrs. William Garde, of the town of Avon. A blow on the stomach crushed her kidneys and bowels, the injury being inflicted by a breaking whiffletree; and after she had suffered forty-eight hours of mortal agony, death came to her relief.

Miss Eicher was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chris. Eicher, and had made her home with Mr. and Mrs. Garde for a long time. The whole farm force were busy with haying and were short handed. Miss Eicher volunteered to drive the team on the hay fork. Her proposal was accepted, under the circumstances and she went to work. The hay fork was worked with a long rope the team being hitched to one end while the other end ran through the pulley and down to the fork. After the fork had been pushed down into the load, the team would go ahead and raise the fork load up into the barn. Miss Eicher had driven the team back and forth several times before the accident happened.

Blow On the Stomach Fatal.

On her last trip, the fork with its load was a trifle heavier, perhaps; and the horses bent to their work. Miss Eicher was close behind them as with straining harness they tugged at the load. Then, without an instant's warning, a trace gave way, and the heavy hard wood whiffletree shot backward as if fired from a catapult. Miss Eicher was standing in such a position that she could not dodge it and received the heavy blow with full force on her abdomen. With a scream she sank to the ground, and her brother, and Cornelius Garde, who were at work in the barn, heard her call. They made haste to reach her side and a messenger was sent to Belmont for Dr. Ernest Helm. After an examination Dr. Helm said that the injuries were of an internal nature and that hope for her recovery was scant, indeed. Subsequent developments showed the truth of his statement, for after forty-eight hours of suffering death released the girl from agony. The only mark was a faint black and blue spot of small size. The cause of death was the crushing of bowels and right kidney and the following inflammation.

FOREIGNERS RAN THE SOCIAL.

Gypsies, Turks, Japs and Russians Helped the Rectory Club Last Evening.

Plenty of foreigners and all of them pretty, entertained the guests at the Rectory club lawn social on M. J. Smith's grounds last evening. Japanese lanterns made pretty pictures among the trees and the tinkling notes of the Orpheus Mandolin club floated on the evening air. On little tables about the lawn Russian and Japanese tea, ice cream and cake were served, while Mr. and Mrs. George Washington passed out generous southern slices of watermelon, and tried to make people believe they were not James Selkirk and Harry Ranous. Mrs. Q. Curtis made a very mysterious gypsy fortune teller, and around her clustered a gypsy band composed of Mamie Smith, Elsie Fathers, Grace Van Bergh, May Conroy, Gertrude Richards, Anna Smith, Leonard Matthews and Loren Morse.

Rebecca's well flowed with lemonade and some thought they traced a resemblance between Rebecca and Miss Annie McCaffrey. As for other beverages, Japanese tea was dispersed by Luella Conroy, Maggie Towers, May Atwood and Kate Smith while Russian tea was passed around by Lillie Allen and Annie Houghton. Rose Spilde and Allie Kimball made very graceful French candy girls. At the refreshment table these waitresses had charge: Mamie McCaffrey, Lillie Knippenberg, Maggie Smith, Kittie Diller, Louise Liddell, Alma Ashbaugh, Maude Knippenberg.

THE CORPORAL WAS BEING PULLED

Change of Drivers Results in More Speed at Detroit—Horse Gossip.

Janesville people who saw "The Corporal" march off with the 2:28 class trotting purse here last week made up their minds that he could go much faster than 2:16, the time made on the Janesville track. The wisdom of the declaration was shown at Detroit yesterday. J. B. Chandler, the driver of The Corporal made no move to win the race so in the third heat the judge took Chandler from the sulky and placed The Corporal in Geer's charge. The result was the winning of the last three heats and the marking of The Corporal in 2:13.4.

Pearl C., the handsome little mare from Lincoln, Ill., who won the 2:45 class pacing purse here, and turned the track in 2:11, captured the money in the 2:25 pacing class at Joliet yesterday, defeating a field of twelve; the race was easy for the Lincoln mare who only had to go in 2:18 to win.

Henry Cheesman's filly, Annet, who made The Corporal go faster miles than would have been necessary otherwise in the race at the Janesville track last week, started in the three-year old 2:30 class race at Freeport yesterday, but was defeated by Azazeloid in 2:18. Mediumwood, another horse that trotted here, T. J. Dunbar being the teamster, got third money.

BRIEF LOCAL NEWS NOTES.

How old are you? Did you ever stop to reflect how old you really are? How swiftly time flies. We heard of a dealer in shoes who had a stock so much older than he was that when he opened the store in the morning he would always take off his hat to his ancient and aged shoes; but he finally sold out for 65 cents on the first cost. We don't like to grow old. We don't like old shoes one bit better. We don't buy old shoes at any price Brown Bros. & Lincoln.

LOT OF GREEN STUFF IN LOCAL MARKETS

EARLY SWEET CORN SELLING IN SMALL QUANTITIES

Home Grown Potatoes Growing More Plentiful—Pears, Peaches, Apples and Other Fruit Becoming Plentiful and the Melon Supply Keeps Up Well—Berries Almost Gone.

An early variety of home grown green corn is being retailed by grocers at two cents an ear. That so far handled is quite naturally of a rather inferior quality, being exceedingly small, but there is a lively demand notwithstanding and the trade cannot be supplied. Two weeks from now the markets will be flooded with the standard home grown article, and prices will begin to drop downward. Home grown potatoes have been brought in at a lively rate this week, each farmer apparently making a special point to get his earliest tubers to town while the price was the best. In a few instances the retail price fell to 75 cents, but as a general thing $1 per bushel has been the ruling figure. The stocks on hand will probably fall off some for a week or so, as the rush to market has already begun to let up.

Pears, peaches, apples are becoming quite common and no longer attract special attention. The melon trade remains good, the big watermelons being reinforced by the caneloupe and other varieties. As usual at this season, fruits of all kinds are in demand. The small berry season is rapidly waning, though blackberries, blueberries and some other kinds will be with us for several weeks.

THIN GOWNS.

How to Keep Muslin Fresh—The Making and the Washing.

Muslin gowns, which are fashionable just now, require to be carefully treated and frequently washed in order to keep their freshness and dainty appearance. The lining of the skirt should therefore be made of a separate piece of material, and not sewed in with it, but cut exactly like the skirt itself. Thin silk, satin or sateen may be used and the stiff facing put in that the muslin may be held out in the proper form. The muslin skirt is finished with a six inch hem, over which flat insertion may be placed if it is desired. Ruffles are little worn on this season's thin skirts. The two skirts may be mounted on the same band, care being taken that they are of equal length and that the seams correspond. The fullness is gathered in the band, slightly in front and at the sides, the main part being reserved for the back. If a pocket is wanted, it is placed in the lower skirt.

The bodice may also be made separate from the lining and fastened to it only at the collar, waist and armholes. The sleeves should be as full as possible at the top and may be restrained by an undersleeve of crinoline. In order that this may not be visible the muslin sleeve must be

AN ELECTRIC SPRING.

Many Invalids Were Cured There Before the Deception Was Found Out.

In one of the shipyards of Cleveland there is a young man who demonstrated to some people of the Rocky Mountain country the great influence of the mind over the body, says the Cleveland Leader. In their cases this influence was sufficient to cure various diseases, until they discovered the hoax, and then a relapse came to some who had not as yet thoroughly recovered. The young man and his companions were not posing as priests of any peculiar faith, but were simply looking out for the dollars that might come from their patients, and the cures were in no wise credited to faith, but to the natural properties of an "electric spring." This they claimed to have discovered under the bluff at Pike's Peak, and over the water they built a fancy sanitarium. Soon people came from far and near, and not only came, but were cured. From various diseases the patients obtained relief, and the sufferers from rheumatism were numerous, some being terribly crippled. The phenomena of the spring were remarkable and unique. Those who bathed in its waters felt pleasing currents of the subtle energy coursing through their anatomy; and when a cup (which was chained) was touched to its surface a shock was felt by the arm which held the cup. Marvelous success came to the sanitarium, and wealth was rapidly coming to the young men during the several months that the cure was in operation, until one day a party of electricians visited the place and discovered the secret of the spring's peculiar action. Thereupon, fearing the wrath of the people, the young men fled, leaving everything behind. The visiting electricians, strolling over the mountain, had found wires, and these were traced into the spring. Beneath the rocky bottom of the basin there was a network of the conductors. The secret of the shock obtained at the drinking-place was found to lie in the fact that the water was connected with a wire, and when the cup touched the surface a circuit was formed. The discovery of the fraud destroyed in many cases all the good that had been done by the treatment.

Fire Proof Celluloid.

A unique method is lately described as introduced in England for manufacturing fireproof celluloid simply from the spent fibers from paper mills. The process is simple—that is, as described, the pulp, consisting of fibers collected from washing water of the paper mill, is subjected to the action of certain chemicals which reduces it to a glutinous state, and is it then sent through a centrifugal pump, which gives it an even substance, any shade of color being imparted to it at the same time by the use of aniline dyes. After this it is strained through flannel into square boxes, in a short time assuming an almost solid consistency. In this state the celluloid can be cut into slices or molded when the composition is in a liquid condition. The substance thus formed is asserted to be perfectly safe, and it is proposed to make from it printing surfaces for illustrations, for stereotyping, and to utilize it for various purposes as a substitute for other materials now employed.

Pneumatic Mail Service.

Within a year the mails between New York and Brooklyn will be whisked back and forth through pneumatic tubes, running from one government building to the other. The pipes will be large enough to admit small pouches and it is said the cost will not exceed $100,000. The pneumatic delivery of parcels also is under consideration in several large cities.

Drying Up.

The region of the Caucasus is said to be drying up through the recession of the Caspian sea, leaving barren tracts of sand, which the wind carries over the plains. During the last hundred years no less than 7,000 square miles of shore have been laid bare in this way.

Why Does a Fellow Get Yellow?

You needn't make an answer to this simple conundrum. We know that you know that a fellow—we use the term in no offensive sense—is yellow because he is bilious. In other words, his liver has got out of order, his bowels have become constipated. His skin and eyeballs assume a most unwarrantable yellow on a safe frontage, his tongue puts on a coat of fur, even in the summer time; beneath his right shoulder blade and ribs twinges remind him that a very restless imp is in their immediate vicinity. Now, if this hapless individual will simply procure and use at once Hostetter's Stomach Bitters he'll be all right shortly. Constipation, biliousness, malaria, indigestion, rheumatism, neuralgia and disorder of the kidneys and bladder all yield to this peerless family remedy and preventive. Use it promptly, with persistence and regularity. A wineglassful thrice daily.

Narcoti-Cure

CURES THE TOBACCO HABIT
IN 4 TO 10 DAYS
OR MONEY REFUNDED.

Use All the Tobacco You Want Till Your "Craving" is Gone.

Narcoti-Cure is the only remedy in the world that acts directly on the nerves and drives the nicotine from the system in four to ten days. It leaves the patient in better health than before taking, and is warranted free from all injurious ingredients.

Narcoti-Cure is popular because it allows the patient to use all the tobacco he wants while under treatment, or until the "craving" and "hankering" are gone. It is then no sacrifice to throw away tobacco forever.

Narcoti-Cure is sold at the uniform price of 85 a bottle, and one bottle cures.

Money refunded if a cure is not effected when taken according to directions.

Of Amherst, Mass., Chewed Tobacco
For 46 Years, and Was Cured
by Narcoti-Cure.

AMHERST, Mass., Feb. 8, 1895.
The Narcoti Chemical Co.

Gentlemen:—Replying to yours of the 1st would say that I have used tobacco for 46 years and of late have consumed a 10 cent plug a day, besides smoking considerably. I commenced to use tobacco when I was only 11 years old, and have never been able to give up the habit until I took Narcoti-Cure, although I have tried other so-called remedies without effect. After using your remedy four days all "hankering" for chewing disappeared, and in four days more smoking became unpleasant. I have no further desire for the weed, and experienced no bad effects, whatever. I am gaining flesh, and feel better than I have for a long time. To all who wish to be free from the tobacco habit I would say use Narcoti-Cure.

Yours truly, W. N. WAITE.

If your druggist is unable to give you full particulars about NARCOTI-CURE, send to us for Book of Particulars free, or send $5 for a bottle by mail

Doubt About Insurance.

Insuring in a questionable company is like depositing in a shaky bank. Both concerns may pull through, but why take the risk? Read this list:

lined with the material which lines the bodice and skirt. The sleeve may come to the wrist or stop at the elbow, the latter style being preferred at present. The elbow sleeve is finished with a frill of lace or a band of ribbon tied in a knot on the outside of the arm. Light, soft draperies are much in vogue for the bodice.

A sketch is given of a delicate muslin gown, mauve printed with a floral pattern. The bodice skirt has two bands of open lace insertion around the foot and is made over a lining of mauve silk. The blouse bodice is fitted behind, but full in front, and two bands of insertion form chevrons across the bosom. The puffs and cuffs of the sleeves are similarly trimmed. The draped collar and the belt, which ties at the left side with long ends, are of white satin. The hat is of yellow straw adorned with large roses and black plumes.

TOILET HINTS.

To Clean Hairbrushes—Pink Ears—Powder and Paint.

Women whose hands are of an undesirable shape, color or size find the severe line of the dress sleeve finishing at the wrist without any softening addition very trying. Lace applied in any manner has a wonderfully becoming effect, and ruffles falling full over the wrist and partially covering the hand improve and even beautify a red hand or one that is large and ill formed.

It is said that the proper way to clean hairbrushes is to rub in powder, which is allowed to stay some time and then rubbed out with a cloth. The ivory or silver backs should never be submerged in water, as it discolors the ivory and injures the attachment of the silver. When the bristles must be washed, lumps of soda should be put in lukewarm water and the bristles dipped in until they are clean. They should then be dipped in cold, clear water, and the brushes should be placed, bristles downward, where they will dry quickly.

Pink ears are considered a beauty in Paris, and women whose ears are pale and bloodless looking are advised to rub them briskly every day in order to get up a circulation in them and produce the desired rosy tinge.

Women to whom powder and rouge are habitually a part of the daily toilet cannot be too frequently reminded that every atom of these factitious aids ought to be removed at night under penalty of ruin to the natural complexion. The pores of the skin demand to be left unclogged at least half the time in order to perform their native functions. If they are afforded no opportunity to do so, the skin becomes rough and discolored. A bath of warm water and fine soap conscientiously given to the face every night is absolutely necessary.

An illustration is given of a very elaborate summer mantle, which is worn above an ample godet skirt of changeable ivory and blue silk quite untrimmed. The mantle itself, which is close fitting and has a short ruffled basque, is of blue grosgrain silk covered with applique embroidery of gold, steel and pale blue. The front opens over a Louis Quinze vest of ivory silk embroidered with silver, and coquilles of white lace fall from the throat to the waist. The sleeves consist of two deep, full flounces of white lace over a close sleeve of changeable silk. A cravat of blue ribbon is tied at the neck. A toque of blue straw accompanies the mantle, trimmed with blue ribbon and large ivory flowers.

WHERE THE SCHEMES FAIL

President Angell was right when he pointed out the flaw in most of the prevailing schemes for bettering man's condition. Their fatal defect is that they lead people to believe there are other and easier ways for them to make an honest living than by working for it day in and day out with all their might. We have innumerable projects for legislating men into prosperity without industrious and persevering effort on their part. The reformers assure us that every evil, real or imaginary, can be removed by passing laws for the purpose. It is practically contended by many of these cheap and noisy agitators that it is the business of the government to provide work and wages for its citizens, and even to support them, partially or entirely, when they find it hard to earn their own living. Socialistic schemes of all sorts are proposed as substitutes for the old fashioned theory of personal independence and self-reliance. The average workman is coddled with the delusive idea that he is entitled not only to fair pay for his service, but also to a share in the profits of the man who employs him; and that this can be and should be accomplished by statute. Thus a feeling of discontent is generated, and demoralization ensues, simply because honest minds are bewildered with sophistry, and the plain facts of the case—facts that always have existed and always will exist—are cunningly evaded and concealed.

OUTS BOTH WAYS.

This should be chalked on Coin's blackboard in large letters:

"It is impossible to find a cheaper way for the people to pay what they owe without at the same time providing a cheaper way for the payment of what is owing to them."

There is the money question in a nut-shell.

Any change in the standard of value is bound to work both ways.

There can not be one kind of money for the use of one class of debtors, and another kind for the use of another class. If all the people were debtors, with nothing to their credit in the banks and other corporate agencies of business and prosperity, it might do for them to favor depreciated currency, but the actual situation is such that they stand, to lose more than they can possibly gain. They have the interest of creditors at well as of debtors in the matter; and when this fact is soberly considered by an intelligent citizen he is sure to make up his mind that he cannot afford to vote for the free coinage of silver, or any other money cheapening process.

Hay will be scarce this fall, but as a sort of compensation oats will be cheap. Farmers are planning to get along with less hay than usual. They intend to feed more straw and say stock comes through the winter on rations of bright straw and grain quite as well as on hay and grain.

Nowhere in the United States have Sunday observance crusaders prevented street railway traffic, as they do in Edinburgh and other Scotch cities. It is possible however, that this may yet be made a plank in their platform.

The Milwaukee Telegraph asks if anybody wants to wager that General Joseph B. Doe will not be a prominent candidate for the democratic nomination for governor.

Harvest hands are scarce in Minnesota at $35 a month, a fact that Mr. Harvey should not lose sight of in his tirade against the crime of '73.

A fourth nomination for Cleveland wouldn't be talked of so much if there were any other man of presidential size in the democratic party.

Milwaukee papers say the wholesale price of coal at the dock is such as to make the retail price in the interior of the state about $5.50 a ton.

"Beer and the bible" form the alliance that is said to have defeated English liberals. British politics makes strange bed fellows.

 Philadelphia, Pa., July 24.—An indictment for murder will soon be drawn either in Philadelphia, Chicago, Toronto, or Detroit, against Holmes. District Attorney Graham said he would allow Holmes to be taken to any city that could make out a clear case from which there was no probability of escape.

Small Birds that Italians Eat.
 To the Italian everything is edible; it is a nation without a palate. It steeps a hare in a fennel and eats salt with melons. The craze for devouring birds of all kinds is a species of fury from the Alps to Etna; they crunch the delicate bodies between their jaws with disgusting relish, and a lark represents to them a succulent morsel for the spit or pastry. The trade in larks all over the world is enormous and execrable, and is as large in England as in Italy. It should be made penal by heavy fines on the trappers, the vendors and the eaters, or ere long no more will the lark be heard on earth. It is admitted by all who know anything of the subject that agriculture would be impossible without the aid of birds, as the larvae and developed insects of all kinds would make a desert of the entire area of cultivated land.

SWITCHMAN HENRY MYERS OVERCOME BY HEAT.

St. Paul Employee Found Him Unconscious And it Was Thought That Life Was Extinct But Dr. Joe Whiting Now Says He Will Live—Other City News.

In a stupor that looked like death, Henry Myers was carried from an out-house near the St. Paul passenger depot this morning and Dr. Joe Whiting was summoned. He found Myers suffering from accumulation of heat in the system, to which he had been made especially susceptible by a recent severe illness, Myers who resides near the Catholic cemetery and is employed by the St. Paul company as switchman went into the outhouse at 10:30 this morning and as he did not come out Foreman Burroughs went to look for him. He found Myers lying on the floor unconscious, and it was at first thought that he was dead. He was carried into the passenger station, and after Dr. Whiting had cared for him, he was made comfortable until this afternoon, when he was taken home. While his condition is serious, he will recover.

BAD AIR IS CLEARED BY A SUIT AT LAW

FRANKLIN ST. ATMOSPHERE
PURGED OF PROFANITY

And In Consequence, Mrs. Splitstaver Will Have to Pay a Fine of $1 and Costs or $23.37 in All For Assaulting Mrs. Julia Brosman—Alleged Boy Pickpocket to Be Tried.

When the air of a certain portion of North Franklin street becomes surcharged with the mouthings of some of its residents it is well to have a legal cleaning up of the atmosphere. This was the general impression given by the case of the state of Wisconsin versus Jennie Splitstaver in the municipal court this morning.

Mrs. Splitstaver was fined one dollar and costs, amounting to $23.37 which her husband, August Splitstaver, an employee of Daniel Ryan, the liveryman agreed to settle.

The defendant, Mrs. Splitstaver and plaintiff, Mrs. Brosman are both employees of the Cotton Mill Company.

Mrs. Brosman, Mrs. Splitstaver claimed, had a vile tongue in her head. Mrs. Brosman was noncommittal but insisted that her tongue was her own and she could use it to suit her self.

Mrs. Splitstaver was willing to admit this, but objected to having Mrs. Brosman use it, as alleged, in reflecting on her sobriety and prudence.

She charged that Mrs. Brosman said that she, Mrs. Splitstaver, was drunk once upon a time and was discharged therefore, including a postscript that Webster would spell with the Morse alphabet, to wit:—

— and — resented the Remarks.

When Mrs. Splitstaver heard of these remarks she was exceedingly wroth and took Mrs. Brosman to task. She referred to the remarks as "slander." Then, it was said, Mrs. Splitstaver's temper got the better of her and she smote Mrs. Brosman heavily. Here stories differed.

Mrs. Splitstaver denied that she had "put a hand to that woman in no shape" had witnesses who were present but saw no fight, Mrs. Brosman claimed that Mrs. Splitstaver pushed her against the fence, and she had witnesses that did see a fight. Four other witnesses swore that they would not believe Mrs. Brosman under oath.

One of them was hard of hearing, yet when Attorney Patten inquired whether or not he had heard "whispers" about Mrs. Brosman, he said that he had. Judge Phelps, in deciding the case, said that he was of the opinion that a "day in court" would be a good thing for all parties concerned, and that was one reason why he had issued the warrant and after delivering a rather double edged summing up of the case, and the parties and the conditions that brought the trouble about, he convicted the defendant and imposed a fine of one dollar.

"It is pretty hard to be 'slandered' and then fined for resenting it" Mrs. Splitstaver declared but the court reminded her that she had been found guilty, and that the finding included judgment on all that had been said and done. L. F. Patten appeared for the prosecution and H. S. Sloan for the defense.

Blackmore Comes Up Tomorrow.

William Blackmore, the boy who is charged with picking Mrs. Thomas Butters' pocket at the Traveling Men's picnic, will be brought up before Judge Bennett tomorrow. Blackmore, it will be remembered, was chased through the woods and finally overtaken near the county asylum, by Thomas Butters, who jumped on a horse and gave chase after his wife had been robbed.

Marshal Appleby, of Beloit, has been notified by the sheriff to come up and get W. H. Lacey, the man who was arrested here for an alleged embezzlement committed at Reid City, Michigan, as the sheriff has been holding him about as long as he feels justified in doing. The Michigan authorities are getting the case against Lacey into shape and he will probably be taken into the Line City court tomorrow to answer for his alleged offense.

Chief Acheson has been notified to be on the watch for the men who stole two type writers, a pair of pants with $7 in his pockets, and a satchel from a Madison threshing machine company's office.

Powers' Story Looked Fishy.

T. F. Powers, who will go to the Keely Institute at Waukesha under convoy of Sheriff Appleby tomorrow morning, swore out a warrant in the municipal court, charging James Walsh with assault and battery this morning. Walsh, whose home was formerly in Beloit, claimed that Powers was trying to "put up a job on him," and the case was adjourned until tomorrow afternoon.

Walsh bore an excellent reputation at the Line City, Sheriff Appleby says, while Powers had been drinking for some days and was complained of under the new liquor cure law, some days ago. He had no witnesses to prove that Walsh struck him, and as his story was a cloudy one, he is much more likely to be taking his first "shot" tomorrow afternoon instead of prosecuting Walsh, who appeared to be a law-abiding citizen.

I depend a good deal on people who drive up in their rigs and now that rigs are barred business is very slack. Take it altogether the bridge repairs cost us about as much as they cost the city."

MYERS TOSSED HIGH BY A C & N.W. TRAIN

FARMER MANGLED AND INSTANTLY KILLED.

Conductor Tillotson's Train Dashes a Wagon Into Freight Cars and Throws the Occupant Thirty Feet, Breaking His Neck and Ribs—Horses Escaped Without a Scratch.

Charles Myers had his neck broken, his head smashed and his ribs crushed in by the De Kalb-Janesville accommodation this morning. He was tossed thirty feet in the air, and was dead when he struck the ground.

The accident happened as the train was returning from De Kalb this forenoon. Conductor Tillotson was in charge of the train, Charles Sherwood, of this city, was engineer, and J. Cohn was fireman. Two miles from Roscoe Engineer Sherwood saw a farmer driving toward the track. The whistle was blown, and the farmer stopped. As the train was right at the crossing, however, the horses started and got far enough over the track to leave the wagon squarely on the rails. It was all done in a second. The engine hit the wagon, knocking it into kindling wood. The occupant shot up into the air and struck in a fence corner thirty feet away. The horses were hardly scratched and were not even knocked down.

Without delay the engine was reversed and the train run back to the crossing. Train men picked up the farmer, who had been killed instantly, and took him to Roscoe. He was found to be Charles Myers, a farmer from two miles south of the village.

Myers leaves a family. He had been moving household goods into his new home and was going back for another load when the accident occurred.

A special engine started at 3:15 this afternoon to take the train crew to the coroner's inquest at Roscoe.

"ALL SOULS" The Peoples Church

A Free, Open and Progressive Church.

This church does not assume to be in any sense a divine or infallible institution. We do not boast of our venerable ancestry. To belong or not to belong to "the apostolic succession" is a matter of little concern to us. We do not claim any "authority." We can not promise any supernatural grace or blessing. We admit it freely to belong to our church is no great credit in itself.

Giving Early Promise.

When the crowd was filing out from the matinee young Mr. Youngly stepped on the pretty girl's dress.
"Oh, shoo!" the pretty girl exclaimed, as she was thus suddenly hove to.
Young Mr. Youngly saw his opportunity.
"Don't shoo me," he smartly said. "I'm no cow."
"No," the pretty girl made answer, as she swept demurely past, "but you will be when you grow up."
And it was seven or eight minutes before young Mr. Youngly could light his cigarette.—N. Y. Recorder.

A Query.

Van Bilby—What language do you speak, Miss De Gushah?
Miss De Gushah (sighing divinely)—But one.
Van Bilby—And that?
Miss De Gushah—The language of love.
Van Bilby—Ah, really! But you must find it embarrassing that nobody in society understands dead languages nowadays.—N. Y. World.

Easy One.

"Oh, where can rest be found?"
A weary poet sighs.
That's easy. Drop into a store
That doesn't advertise.
—Kansas City Journal.

HE WOULDN'T PROMISE.

She—Can you keep a secret?
He—Well, it depends a good deal on how rough the weather's going to be. It's hard to tell what a fellow can keep on board ship.—Truth.

A Mutual Service.

He—I am very unfortunate; it seems I can please nobody.
She—Come, cheer up; I have no one to admire me, either.
He—Tell you what—let's found a society for mutual admiration. I, for instance, admire your beautiful eyes; and what do you admire in me?
She—Your good taste.—Brooklyn Life.

Slipping His Mind.

"Oh, dear," sighed Mrs. Tibbetts, "you've no idea what it is to be troubled with a poor memory."
"Does your memory trouble you?" the caller sympathetically asked.
"Oh, no—not mine," Mrs. Tibbetts explained; "my husband's. He forgets every errand I send him on."—N. Y. Recorder.

His Harmless Little Stratagem.

"All ready, miss," said the photographer to the austere-looking young woman who sat facing the camera.
"Please direct your gaze at this mirror at my left * * * There, that will do, and I have succeeded, I think, in catching your very best expression."—Chicago Tribune.

Pleasure in His Work.

"That sour old fellow, Grampus, has a job that just suits him."
"What's that?"
"He's station master where fifty trains go out every day, and he sees somebody miss every one of them."—Chicago Record.

Answered.

Teacher—Which letter is the next one to the letter H?
Boy—Dunno, ma'am.
Teacher—What have I on both sides of my nose?
Boy—Freckles, ma'am.—Pittsburgh Chronicle.

Tommy's Mother—Did you hear about poor Mrs. Jones? She ran a needle into her hand. The doctors had to open every finger trying to find it.
Tommy—What made 'em do that, mamma? Why didn't they get the lady another needle?—Toronto Rural.

A Double-Header.

"Two heads are better than one," they say; but it does not always work that way. There's an instance, though, on which there's no quarrel.
Two heads are better than one in a barrel.—Judge.

GOOD HABITS OF WORK.

Once Acquired, They Are Like Oil to Life's Machine.

If the time that many of us waste in making up our minds over little matters could be employed in doing something really useful how much more would we be able to accomplish? As with most bad habits, moralizers Harper's Bazar, the habit of indecision in little everyday affairs is the easiest thing in the world to acquire. We think so much of the small duties of life that they get to assume the most formidable proportions and in deciding what we shall do about them we leave ourselves little time for greater and more serious things. How we envy those people who have the knack of accomplishing a great deal without apparent effort! We look at them in wonder and vainly wish that we might discover their secret. It does not appear difficult. "Why," we ask ourselves, "can not we do as much as they?" But strive as we may we never seem to succeed. The secret is not a hard one to find, but it is a hard one for us to put in practice, at first, if we have been of the hesitating, undecided kind. They have learned to make up their minds quickly, and then never to permit themselves to have any doubts as to the wisdom of their decisions. They do their work systematically, and put into each working moment the best that is in them, without thinking of the result. They are the people who rise at the same time each morning and take up their daily tasks at the same hour every day. They are the creatures of habit, but their habits are nearly all good ones, that lead them in the direct line of that which they are striving to do. There is no one factor of success stronger than that of having acquired good habits of work. Having once formed these, we are left free to look beyond the mere details of the work and to see how best we may accomplish that which we have undertaken. It is like playing the piano. At first we have to study the music and the keys, and each note we strike requires a separate and distinct effort of the will, but in a little while we begin to read music readily, and as our fingers wander readily over the keys we are not conscious of guiding or directing them. And this is the way we should learn to do our work, whatever it may be. The details of it should never trouble us, but they should become as a second nature.

A SWEET YOUNG FACE.

Along the noisy city ways
And in this rattling city car,
On this the dreariest of days,
Perplexed with business fret and jar.

When suddenly a young, sweet face
Looked on my petulance and pain
And lent it something of its grace
And charmed it into peace again.

The day was just as bleak without,
My neighbors just as cold within,
And truth was just as full of doubt,
The world was just as full of sin.

But in the light of that young smile
The world grew pure, the heart grew warm,
And sunshine gleamed a little while
Across the darkness of the storm.

I did not care to seek her name,
I only said, "God bless thy life,
Thy sweet young grace be still the same,
Or happy maid or happy wife."

—Phillips Brooks.

THE EARTHQUAKE.

Surely no building of its size ever contained more food for the imagination than my friend Norman's riverside bungalow. It was fairly crammed with curiosities from many lands.

Jack Norman had not only "been everywhere and seen everything," as the saying is—he had brought home a shipload of mite but convincing witnesses.

Capital yams he would spin about his treasures too, but of one object neither he nor his pretty Spanish-American wife could be induced to speak, except casually.

"The Liberator is sacred," he would say when asked where he got it, or "The Liberator has been in an earthquake," when its battered appearance was commented upon.

It was the figure of a satyr in bronze, about 3 feet high, with the legs and hoofs of a goat, short, blunted horns, huge pointed ears, grinning, lopsided mouth and a broken nose. Its left eye had also been in the wars—the metal was dented as if by a heavy blow, which had changed the figure's original roguish expression into a hideous leer.

Often have I seen Jack put his arm round its wry neck and talk to it with all the affection that a parent bestows on his offspring. But it was Mrs. Norman who gave me the clue to the secret. Jack had been seriously ill—a return of jungle fever. His wife came to me in the drawing room.

"Oh, he is so much better," she said, with her dark eyes swimming. "He soon will be well. Ah, me! What would I do without my brave, true husband? I think no wife has ever been so happy as I. And"—turning to the hideous satyr—"you gave him me, you dear old thing!"

She flung her arms round the twisted neck and kissed the grinning mouth. A dozen times she pressed her warm lips to the cold bronze.

I could not help smiling. "You laugh," she said, "but it is true. Someday Jack shall tell you, perhaps. We do not like to speak of it. There is a grave beyond the sea. A mother tends it who would grieve if the truth were known."

Soon afterward I had the good luck to do Norman a service.

"I must make you a present," he said. "Look round and tell me what you would like. I bar the Liberator, of course."

"I won't take anything," I answered. "If you'll tell me why you set such store by that old bronze, we shall be quits."

"I couldn't have done it a week ago for a certain reason. But the person concerned is dead." I had noticed that Mrs. Norman was in deep mourning.

He took a nude, guardless sword from the wall. "Do you know what this is?" he asked.

"Some sort of sword," I replied. "It is a Nicaraguan machete, carried by all the men and many of the women in that quiet country. Look along the edge."

I did so and perceived a dull stain near the square point. Jack drew his finger down a long white scar on his bronzed cheek.

"That stain is blood. It came from here—some of it. I got a worse cut on the head. Now I'll tell you the story." He lit a cigar, flung himself into an easy chair and began.

"Some years ago I had an interest in a Segovian gold mine. Segovia, I should say, is in Nicaragua, between the Great lake and Honduras. Tiring of the wild life, I resolved to visit Granada. One night I passed in the hotel, and that was too long, for I was eaten alive. Next day I sought out a vacant house, found the owner and struck a bargain.

"The house I rented was an immense building, erected on three sides of a courtyard paved with marble. There was not a pane of glass in it, but plenty of iron bars. The courtyard had a broken fountain in the center, waterless, of course, and half hidden by rubbish and shrubs, run wild long since.

"The time hung pretty heavily upon my hands, so one morning I set to work to clear away the rubbish that choked the basin of the fountain. At the very bottom of the heap I found the Liberator.

"I cleaned the statue myself. Pepe dared not touch it at first. He said it was a Carib god. It wasn't in its present battered condition then, and I considered it a great find. We set it up on a shelf above my bed, and in 48 hours I had forgotten all about it.

"Of course I visited the cafes, where you may drink bad chocolate and gamble to your heart's content. Everybody does both there, and when one is in Rome—you know the adage?"

"At a gambling house I met Don Manuel Arguello. By way of return for the money he had won of me he took me home and introduced me to his mother and cousin. After that I called every day, for I had fallen in love with the Senora Isabel.

"The passion of my life was returned. But I was unaware that Don Manuel also loved her. I did not learn until too late that he had long looked forward to repairing his broken fortunes by marriage with his cousin. He enlightened me—I need not describe the scene—and I refused to stand aside. Then he threatened to take my life.

"As you know, my wife is a capital horsewoman, and it was our custom to ride daily on the Los Cocos road. One morning my darling failed to meet me at the trysting place. I dismounted to wait, leaving my horse with Pepe. Presently he called me, and I found him examining the tracks.

"'Senor,' said he in his grave fashion, 'here is the trail of the senora's mare. It is fresh. It was made this morning.' He moved on, bent double.

"'Other horses have halted here, have plunged about and have gone. The senora's mare went with them.' Again he moved on.

"'Ah!' he exclaimed presently, 'there is the print of a lasso ring which has missed the mark. There the senora's mare halted suddenly, like the wise animal she is. That lasso did not miss, and she has had a fall before maybe'—

"'What on earth are you driving at?' I cried.

"'The senora turned there and spurred the mare,' he said. 'The other horses followed in a great hurry, senor. She did not gallop far, as we have seen. Afterward she went quietly.'

"'For the love of heaven tell me what you have learned!' I cried.

"'A mile farther on, senor,' answered the Indian stolidly, 'there is a path which leads to Don Manuel's hacienda. If the senora's mare turns there, that is where the Senora Isabel will have gone—not willingly, senor.'

"We galloped hard to the byway spoken of. Sure enough, all the tracks left the road there. The observant Indian was right.

"I had my pistols, he his machete. We pursued the abductors and caught them before they reached the hacienda—as ugly a quartet as I ever set eyes on. The prudent Don Manuel had directed the business from a safe distance.

"His fellows showed fight, of course, but I managed to wing one at the first fire, when they all turned tail. I took my darling back to her aunt, with whom she was quite safe. Don Manuel did not show up. He knew better."

Mrs. Norman came in just then, and Jack abruptly changed the subject. Half an hour later Jack resumed.

"My darling was very fond of her aunt and unwilling to hurt her, so we said nothing of her son's villainy. But when Pepe and I got back to our ruinous palace he advised me to barricade the door of my room. However, I didn't think it worth while, but at nightfall I stretched myself on the hide bed and fell asleep, with a revolver close to my hand.

"About midnight I was awakened by a cut on the head, which, luckily, did not stun me, or I shouldn't be spinning this yarn now. I started up with the blood streaming down my face.

"Don Manuel stood over me with my revolver in one hand and an uplifted machete in the other. There's the machete."

"'Now you shall die, robber!' he hissed and aimed another blow at me, which I avoided. Shouting loudly for Pepe, I grappled with him and got hold of his wrists. I was the stronger, but loss of blood had weakened me. He wrenched his right hand free and cut me across the cheek. The blow dazed me; I staggered and fell on the bed.

"Before I could rise his knee was on my chest, the machete at my throat. I felt the edge. With a last effort I flung him from me. That instant the bed heaved and tossed, the stout walls shook, the sleeping city awoke with a scream of terror. Dazed as I was, I knew what had happened. So did my enemy.

"The earthquake shall not save you!" he yelled, and rushed at me over the quivering floor. But again the bed heaved beneath me. Something fell from above. There was a dull, sickening thud—a scream of agony—and Don Manuel rolled over and lay still, leaving the machete across my neck. Ah, that was a close shave!

"I staggered to my feet and groped my way through clouds of dust to the street, which was full of people, shrieking, wailing, praying to the saints. An hour the earthquake lasted, shock following shock.

"When all was quiet and the people had ceased to wail and pray, I returned to the palace. Pepe lay in his hammock, bound and gagged. Together we entered the room where I had so narrowly escaped death.

"The body of Don Manuel, with the skull crushed in, lay beside my bed. Close at hand lay the Liberator in the condition in which you see it. The statue had toppled over in the nick of time, killed the would-be murderer and set me free. On such chances do the lives of men hang.

"Don Manuel's mother never knew the truth respecting his death. It was attributed to the earthquake, as also were the cuts on my head and cheek. I left Granada as soon as I could, taking my bride with me.

"Now you know why we treasure the Liberator, and why we have not dared to talk about it."—Answers.

New Sort of Poker.

A new variation of poker has sprung up. It deals out the entire pack in equal numbers to all players. If five are playing, for example, each will get ten cards at the start. If seven are playing, each gets seven, the three cards left over being put aside. Then, instead of drawing, each player discards as he likes from his hand, so that he shall have five cards to play with, making the best hand possible out of those dealt him. Hands are apt to run high in this sort of game. It is called "peculiar."

A poker game in which six cards were dealt, discards and draws being so regulated that only five cards constituted the final hand, has been known for some time, but this is a further development of that idea. It is said to have originated along the shores of Long Island.—New York Sun.

YOUNG GIRLS.

INTERESTING CONCLUSIONS.

Mothers Agree on One Vital Subject.

(OFFICIAL TO OUR LADY READERS.)
Young girls, to the thinking mind, are ever subjects of the deepest interest.

Some lead lives of luxury, while others toil for mere existence. Separate, however, as their paths in life may lie, Nature demands of them the same obedience. All are subject to the same physical laws, and suffer in proportion to their violation.

Young girls are reticent through modesty, and often withhold what ought to be told.

Yet they are not to blame, for information on such subjects has been withheld from them, owing to the false interpretation of a mother's duty.

In such cases they should do as thousands of young ladies are doing every day: write to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass., giving as nearly as possible their symptoms, and receive her freely given advice and timely aid.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the young girl's most trusted friend. It can be obtained of any druggist, and speedily relieves and cures irregularities, suspension, retention, and all derangements of the womb and ovaries.

It banishes promptly all pains, headache, backache, faintness, nervousness, sleeplessness, melancholia, etc. Young girls must know that self-preservation is the first law of nature.
